

Salvesen Mindroom Centre Stakeholders Group

Are you aged 16-25?

Are you neurodivergent?

Would you like to help to make the world a better place for all children and young people?

Then Salvesen Mindroom Centre could use your help!

We need you

Neurodiversity means there is a wide variation in brain processes. It is an essential form of human diversity. Being neurodivergent means that your brain processes information in a way that is not typical of the majority. It might mean that you have autism, dyslexia, ADHD, DCD, Tourette's or another similar condition.

We need you to guide and help us to work in a way that will make the most difference in the lives of all children and young people who are neurodivergent. We would like you to join a diverse group of young people that we can consult about how to deliver and develop our services.

You don't need to have a formal diagnosis to be a part of this group or to get support from Salvesen Mindroom Centre.

What you will get

- Full training & support
- The chance to influence the work of a national charity
- The chance to help develop new services and resources for neurodivergent young people
- A full say in how the group works and what it does

What we will need from you

- A commitment to meet with the rest of the group (in person or online) several times a year
- A willingness to share your insights and experience
- A respect for other people's opinions
- Your passion for making a difference!
